

IMAGE PROCESSOR

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

5 An image processor has a light source lamp for illuminating an original when scanning the original. The lamp can be attached to and detached from lamp brackets, and the lamp brackets can be attached to and detached from a carriage which is moved for the scanning operation, whereby the light source lamp can be attached to and detached from the carriage without having to disconnect the carriage from wires.